THE DIVERSITY GAME™

Playing the Game of Life

What is the Diversity Game™?

A card game for groups of up to eight players based on the rules of the regular game of 'pick up and put down'. As many groups can play as you have sets of cards! Players are dealt cards that contain different aspects of identity, and players play the game according to given scenarios. Players try to finish the game with cards that best maximise their chances of success ('winning' at life) within the given scenarios.

How Can I Find Out More About It?

Zane Ma Rhea will consult with you and your organisation. Together, you can design a diversity related workshop or incorporate the game into an established program. The free consultation:

- puts the game into the specific context of your organisation: for example, leadership, management, recruitment, or retention
- determines the best place to play the game for your organisation
- ideal for team, middle manager, and executive development
- can be tailored so that participants can learn to facilitate the game as well as play it
- uses the experience of playing the game to reflect on personal and professional values, behaviour and power within your organisation

You will receive a certificate on completion of the workshop. The cards and instruction manual are available for purchase in addition to the cost of the workshop.

Can I Just Buy the Cards?

If you feel confident to incorporate the tool into your training materials, it is possible to buy the basic kit and additional cards. See over for details and costs.

Fill in your details and we'll be in touch.

- I would like to order the Diversity Game™.
- Please send me more information on tailored options that are available so that I could use the Diversity Game™ within my own organization.
- I would be interested in receiving training in the Diversity Game™ for myself and others so that we can use it within our company's staff development program.
